IN FLANDERS' FIELDS

In Flanders' Fields, the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie

In Flanders' Fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from falling hands, we throw
The torch. Be yours to lift it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep though poppies blow
In Flanders' fields.

—Lt.-Col. John McCrae.

France, 1917.

Poppy Day—
Its Purpose.

At the eleventh hour of the eleventh day in the eleventh month, 1918, there was a great silence throughout the world. All had been forewarned that the guns of the great war would be silenced and the swords sheathed. It was the Armistice—the cessation of hostilities in a war which had appalled civilization for over four years. Silence seemed to be the outstanding feature of the moment, a silence which was filled with awe and reverence, for men could only breathe that sigh of relief and thankfulness that all was over. That silence swept over the whole world and the sleeping thousands of the thousands upon thousands of noble sons caught its message as it passed over them.

It is "test we forget" those who sleep in Flanders' Fields; that there has been organized an effort to keep fresh in the memory of man, the worth of their life and sacrifice, and the hallowed spots which are marked and beautified by Nature's hand, with blood red poppies, that we would penetrate the day by wearing this significant emblem. For this purpose hundreds of thousands of poppies are manufactured by disabled soldiers and are distributed throughout the length and breadth of the land, through the G.W.V.A. channels, and are taken up by a like number of citizens. The proceeds of these sales are used to assist the organization in fulfilling a trust in respect to the dependents of our fallen and disabled comrades, on whose behalf the G.W.V.A. is ever ready to see that their interests are looked after.

Are You Doing
Your Share?

Have you sent out of town lately for any dry goods, groceries, clothing, printing, or anything else you could have just as well bought here? If so—you are doing your share towards keeping the community broke.

Milk Cow is Coming Back.

The milk cow is coming back into favor. This precious animal kept provisions on the pantry shelf for so many farmers, during the past few years, that more are beginning to look upon her as the most necessary chattel of the farm. The price of the dairy cow is bound to climb, as she is paying dividends.—Hanna Herald.

Help For The Farmer's Wife

The more help the farmer gets, the more help his wife needs. She has to provide the meals for the men engaged in harvesting the world's bread stuffs. The exhausting demands of the toil of cooking upon the women of the farms would win many of the strong men who tend binders all day long in the harvest fields, with nothing to worry about except that supper may be late.—Regina Leader.

Working Together

It is surely a great thing to have the spirit and gift for doing team work. Many people seem to lack it, and the want is a very serious, if not fatal one. No matter how capable or clever a man may be he always needs to be supplemented if his life and work are going to amount to anything; and what his relationship is to be with the great army of folk who are, or ought to be, his helpers in the work and way of life, is a very vital matter indeed. A man is responsible for his own immediate job, of course, but he is also responsible for helping other folk with theirs, and getting other folk to help him, and what he does in these two latter regards will tell much of the story of the real achievement of his life. This thing of "plowing a lone furrow," is very poor business, and at its worst is a foolish and wicked narrowing of a man's influence and usefulness in the world. Real comradeship in the work and duty of life is the only way to make that work and duty count in a far-reaching fashion, and when, through selfishness or conceit or just pure "cussedness" we refuse to cooperate we are spoiling things very badly. And though these reasons we give for failure to cooperate do not exhaust the list we will not find many more worthy ones even if we go through it all. Inability to do team work is a real vice as well as a limitation.—Guardian.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ALBERTA

The action of the Alberta Division of the Red Cross Society in soliciting the people to cooperate in giving donations of wheat or cash to assist in mitigating the suffering caused by the recent stupendous disaster in Japan, meets with my hearty endorsement, and I appeal with confidence to the provincial press to bring the matter to the attention of their readers. By a generous response we shall comply with article 25 of the Covenant of the League of Nations and carry out one of the chief purposes for which the Red Cross Society was incorporated, namely, to rally to the relief of suffering humanity.

Sincerely yours,
R. G. BRETT,
Lieutenant Governor

Ella Eno's Thanksgiving

(By Mabel G. Parkinson)

Little Miss Eno suddenly put down the plate of nuts and candy and burst into tears. It was the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day and with the Eno trait of sticking to family custom she had prepared the little plate of candy and nuts for herself in the pantry, and was passing through the dining room to the sitting room, when the sudden loneliness of it all overwhelmed her. Last Thanksgiving Day she had prepared two plates of nuts and candies and had carried them up to her mother's bedroom, intending to eat hers there, too, and enjoy the company after the almost all day of loneliness in the kitchen. But the little mother just turned over enough to say, "I don't care for any, dear," and then turned her face toward the wall again, with a finality that seemed to say, "And I don't care to talk either."

Feeling herself dismissed from the sick room, and the presence of the only loved one on earth, the girl said, "Oh, all right, dear," and had almost staggered out of the room and down the stairs again. She had put the plates on the kitchen table and given vent to her loneliness and disappointment in a spell of weeping. But she pulled herself together bravely and when she next went up to see her mother all traces of tears had been washed away.

Now, this Thanksgiving, there was no little mother in the room upstairs; no little mother anywhere in the house; no little mother anywhere on earth. And Miss Eno put down the plate and cried. She had been invited to Mrs. Cron's to Thanksgiving dinner, but two days before, Mrs. Cron had been taken down with the flu. Having accepted Mrs. Cron's invitation, she had declined other proffered ones, and thus in the end was all alone at home on Thanksgiving Day. But little Ella Eno, still on the sunny side of fifty, was not one to sit and cry very long. She jumped up suddenly, just as suddenly as she had put down the plate. "Don't be silly," Ella Eno," she said to herself, "you don't want to engage in self pity. Get up and go out and do something for somebody. Forget yourself. Put the nuts and candies into the prettiest box you can find, and take your cheeriest book and run down across the river and see old Mrs. Simpson. She has been alone without her mother for twenty years."

But when she got down to Mrs. Simpson's she did not find her here. The little sitting room was all a-hum with a quivering bee.

"Oh, come right in, Miss Eno," Mrs. Simpson said cordially. "We're just needing someone to take hold of the underwear department, and you're the very one the good Lord has sent, I'm thinking."

"Underwear department, Mrs. Simpson. Are you starting a dry goods store?"

"No, no, my dear. Didn't you hear about the Dalys? Why, they were burnt out last night, just escaped in their night clothes. There's seven little children, you know, and the people have been sending all kinds of clothing here and we're making some tie-downs, but I wanted someone to sort over the underwear, and see if it'd fit any of 'em, and which ones. The folks all mean kindly, but some folks have funny ideas about things. It's an all day job to sort the stuff. There's a pile of underwear of all sorts and sizes. Did you hear how Martha Blumner is today? She was worse yesterday. I wanted to get over and sit with her a while and let her mother get out for a breath of fresh air, but this happens so unexpected has thrown me off my feet, as it were. Poor kiddies, they just had their little nighties on, and they were so excited that they ran up and down the street in the snow and got their feet frozen before anyone realized what they were doing. Everyone was so excited as to whether all of the children were out of the burning building or not, that they were paying no attention to those two poor little fellows. Poor Mrs. Daly, she has never a word of complaint—all she says is, "Thank God, the children were saved."

And Mr. Daly is the same. And they haven't a cent of insurance. They dropped it after they all had flu, and had such big doctor's and nurses' bills to pay. The policy expired that year and Mr. Daly couldn't renew it. They were just getting on their feet again, and now this has happened. Seems as if some people do get more than their share of trouble in this world. The family's been scattered around among the neighbors for to-night. What's that, you said, Ella Eno? Go to your house? The whole family? Why, that would be grand. "Surely, I'll slip back home and air the sleeping rooms and bedding, and I'll send Bobby Beck over with his pony and sleigh for the underwear and stuff. Where did you say Mrs. Daly is now? I must see her and have them come to my house. I've room for them all, and it's too bad for them to be parted."

So this it was that on Thanksgiving night the big, old, red brick house on the corner, known for seventy years as the Eno home, fairly shook its staid walls at the laughter of the little children trying on various sizes of undergarments in the rooms upstairs. Even the poor mother forgot momentarily their great loss and joined in the children's merriment. And Ella Eno laughed as she had not laughed for many a year. Mr. Daly, staid and serious, pulled at his moustache to hide a smile as Baby Flam Jans appeared before him in a wonderful pink and white sleeping outfit several sizes too large for him, but the best fit obtainable in the "underwear department."

At last the children were put to bed and the grown-ups busied themselves about little dresses and suits until after midnight.

As they were about to retire, Mrs. Daly, standing beside the fireplace, pulled out from the front of her dress a gold watch and began to wind it. "It seems so strange," she said, "doesn't it, that I saved my watch. I always sleep with it under my pillow and I had just pulled it out and was turning on the light to see what time it was, when I heard someone call 'fire!' I must have unknowingly slipped the chain over my head, because I didn't even realize I had it until this afternoon. It was my father's last gift, and it contains my mother's picture." Opening the case she handed the watch to Miss Eno.

Miss Eno held it nearer the light.

"Your mother?" she asked, in a mystified tone.

"Yes."

"Why, who was your mother?"

"My mother was a Hartman."

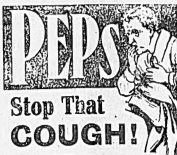

"Not the Hartmans of Stephenville?"

"Yes, the Hartmans of Stephenville. My mother was Isabelle Hartman, and I am her only child. She died when I was a little girl."

And then Mrs. Daly felt herself clasped tightly in the arms of Ella Eno, who exclaimed, amid her tears, "It can't be, oh, it can't be, that this is Isabelle's little girl."

And when she could calm herself, she said simply:

"She was the dearest friend of my

WAINWRIGHT WELL WORTH HALF DOZEN OF MONTANA WELLS

If an oil company, drilling in Alberta, were to bring in a well producing 200 barrels of petroleum a day Alberta would be thrown into a turmoil of excitement and financial circles of Canada would, to say the least, be deeply moved.

An oil company, drilling in Alberta, has brought in a well producing enough wet gas to make it worth a half dozen 200 barrel oil wells. Alberta has not been thrown into any turmoil and, until quite recently, financial circles have hardly been interested.

But gradually the significance of this new development is being realized. The Irma Pabian Wainwright field in east central Alberta on the main line of the Canadian National railway, has been proved practically beyond question to be one of the great gas fields in the world, and British Petroleum Limited, investigating its possibilities for oil as well as gas, gives the assurance that its first well struck at a depth of 2019 feet struck a flow of 6,000,000 feet of gas, which under analysis, tested 2.5 gallons of gasoline per 1,000 cubic feet.

If British Petroleum had announced that it had brought in a well producing 400 gallons of pure gasoline per day the world would have gasped. Yet the announced results of this discovery would have justified the company stating that its No. 1 well gave every indication of being able to produce just that amount of gasoline when the gas was treated for the removal of its gasoline content.

And it might, too, have announced that after the gasoline was removed the dry gas could be burned and made to yield that precious product, carbon black, which has in recent years become so much in demand that production never nears the demand.

A POSTOFFICE INCIDENT

But a few days ago an important and flashily dressed young man called at the post office and asked: "Have you any letter for John Mc—?" adding that he was expecting some from his brother. The postmaster, after carefully looking up the general delivery letters, said: "No sir, there is nothing for you."

The next day at about the same time came the same young man with the same request and again there was nothing for him.

Undaunted, he turned up the next day with the question: "Any letters for John Mc—?" "No, sir," "Well, sir, if you get any letters without any address on them, they would be for me as my brother does not know where I am now."

FEEDING CORRECTIVES TO BREEDING STOCK

The long winters on the prairies are periods during which breeding stock are kept under artificial conditions. The animals take much less exercise than during the summer months and their rations no matter how they are balanced, are usually lacking in some of the elements necessary to maintain a healthy condition.

The use of potassium iodide as a corrective for breeding females, has been adopted by quite a number of feeders. During the past two years the iodide has been used on the Scott station and during the past season has been fed to brood mares, barren cows, brood sows and pregnant ewes. Only small quantities of the drug are required so that the cost is not prohibitive. The price paid during the past season was $6.50 per pound.

In 1922 it was found that while the lambs from ewes receiving the corrective showed no symptoms of goitre, 38 to 45 per cent of the lambs from the other ewes were noticeably affected. Some of the lambs appeared to have the disease only to a slight extent while others were so badly affected that they were unable to nurse. In 1923, the experiment was repeated and again none of the lambs from the iodide-fed ewes showed any signs of goitre, while in two check lots the goitre was noticeable in 34 and 53 per cent of the lambs.

Very little trouble has been experienced with weak foals or hairless piglets on the station, but iodide was given as a precaution. Some trouble had been experienced in abortion in cattle, resulting in sterility of some of the cows. Four of these animals were given potassium iodide and were also inoculated with a vaccine provided by a well known veterinarian. This experiment is not completed but the results to date appear most promising.

The question of how often the animals should receive the potassium iodide, and for how long a period, are two problems that have to be solved, but the plan followed at the Scott station was to commence to feed early in January and continue until April. The sheep were fed the potassium iodide in their salt—for every 100 lbs of salt required, two pounds of potassium iodide was dissolved in the powder for mixing with the grain ration. For the mares and cows, one teaspoonful of potassium iodide was given each animal twice a month. For brood sows much less than this is sufficient.

ALBERTA COAL MINES WILL PRODUCE SEVEN MILLION TONS

With an estimated output of at least seven million tons, Alberta coal mines will this year set a new mark in production, according to John T. Sterling, chief inspector of mines for the province.

Already the production for 1923 is over 1,500,000 in advance of the coal mined in the province up to the first of November last year, states Mr. Sterling, and he says the record of 5,000,000 tons mined in 1920 will be out-distanced this year by a very substantial margin. Last year the coal tonnage from Alberta mines was about 5,800,000.

The Drumheller field has already turned out over 1,000,000 tons this year and all the other fields have made correspondingly good records. With a brisk demand created by the frosty weather of the last few days all over the province Mr. Sterling looks for production to be heavy from this on until the end of the year.

Alberta's payroll in the mines will also be larger this year than ever before, the chief inspector estimating that it will run between $18,000,000 and $19,000,000.

WHOLESALE CONFISCATION

The Alberta official Gazette announces that during the month of December, 42,380 parcels of farm land in Alberta, hitherto in the hands of private owners will become the property of various city, town and rural municipalities and of the province. The same authority announces that on various dates commencing October 31st, and extending to December 31st, 64,286 parcels of town and village property and 14,511 parcels of city property hitherto owned by private citizens will be similarly confiscated.

The parcels of farm land are in almost all cases 160 acres each. The total area that will be transferred from public to private ownership during the coming month of December will be 6,224,800 acres, or in round figures seven million acres. At an average valuation of $10.00 an acre the total amounts to seventy million dollars. The area is a million and a half acres more than the total wheat acreage of the province this season.

Estimating the 63,986 parcels or lots of town and village property at $25.00 each the total value is over a million and a half. Estimating the 14,511 parcels or lots of city property at an average of $250.00 each the total value is over three million.

On the above estimates the total value of the private property now being, and to be, confiscated before the end of the year amounts to just under 75 millions of dollars, or five times last year's provincial revenue—Buletin.

A MAN THERE IS

He may wear a last year's hat; his finger nails may need manicuring; his vest may hang a little loose and his pants bag at the knees; his face may show signs of a second day's growth and the tin dinner pail that he carries may be full of dents and doughnuts, but don't call him the "old man"—he's your father.

For years and years he has been rustling around to get things together. Never once has he failed to do the right thing for you. He thinks you are the greatest boy on earth, bar none, even though you do plaster your hair back, wear smart clothes, and fail to bring home a cent. He is the man who won the love, and a life partnership of the greatest woman on earth—your mother. He is some man, and not "the old man."

If you find as good a wife as he did, you will have to go some, say boy—go some!

Do You Suffer From Headaches?

Headaches seem to be habitual with many people and make life miserable for the sufferer, in fact, a million remedies could not produce the suffering and torture that those afflicted undergo.

There is only one way to get rid of the headaches, and that is to go right to the seat of the trouble. Burdock Blood Bitters will do this by removing the cause of the trouble through its cleansing, strengthening, and tonic action on the whole system. Mr. E. Macnamara, Glasgow, Mass., writes:—"I had headaches every second day, and they were so bad I would have to stay in bed all day long, in fact, from 6 o'clock in the morning to 10 o'clock at night I could hardly bear the suffering, but one day when I was in town I was advised to use Burdock Blood Bitters and it gave me relief of all my headaches. Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for the past 45 years and is manufactured only by The T. Allen Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont."

PORTFOLIOS EXCHANGED TO LIGHTEN PREMIER'S WORK

The following changes in portfolios of ministers of the Alberta government became effective at one o'clock Saturday, November 3rd, at which hour the respective ministers took the oath of office before His Honor Lieutenant Governor Ross. Hon. H. Greenfield, formerly provincial treasurer and secretary, becomes minister of municipal affairs; Hon. J. E. Browne, adds the duties of provincial secretary to those of attorney general; Hon. George Howland becomes minister of public health in addition to his present portfolio of agriculture; Hon. R. G. Reid, formerly minister of municipal affairs, becomes provincial treasurer.

This rearrangement of portfolios was decided upon to relieve the pressure of work upon the premier, who in addition to the premiership has been carrying the portfolios of secretary and treasurer, while this rearrangement will permit of one minister devoting his whole attention to the treasury, and to a close study of the question of taxation and finance.

The premier's past experience in municipal work will be of great assistance to him in the administration of the department of municipal affairs. In the work of the development of coal markets the premier will co-operate with the Hon. J. E. Browne, the new provincial secretary.

For some time the Hon. R. G. Reid has been taking up the study of taxation and finance with a view to this change which has now come about.

FOUR CHILDREN ARE BURNED TO DEATH IN EDMONTON FIRE

Edmonton, Nov. 5.—Four children were burned to death in a fire which broke out in the west end of the city at 2.30 Sunday morning and levelled to the ground the Mount Ross, lately called the Montrose, a three store apartment of heavier board and stucco as well as consuming all the effects of the 12 families that rushed from the burning building in their nightclothes.

The dead are: Edith Campbell, 15 years; Alice Campbell, 12; both the daughters of Charles Campbell, the janitor, and Arthur Ross, aged 12, and Nell Ross, aged 10, the two boys being guests of their uncle.

Edith Campbell, aged 10, lies in the general hospital suffering from burns about the hands and arms, part of her hair being burned off her head as well. While her father carried his wife and baby to safety, she crawled out of an upper window on to a roof and a thrilling rescue was effected by J. P. Thompson, a supreme court clerk, who had escaped with his wife and two children.

Mrs. Alberta Richards was also heroically rescued from the upper part of the burning building by R. J. Hart, a nearby resident, who was early on the scene and brought his own ladder. By the time the firemen arrived a dense smoke and fire bursting from the upper windows beat them back as they strove to save the two boys who were caught in an upper room. Fire spread to dwellings on either side, and burned the upper story of two homes. Buildings across the street were in danger at one stage and Christ church was among those that caught from fire-brands.

The year 1923 will see a new record in Alberta coal production. It is expected that the total production for the year will reach 7,000,000 tons, in comparison with less than 6,000,000 tons last year. The payroll this year will, it is expected, be over $18,000,000.

BLUNTED ARROWS
USED ON BUFFALO
WAINWRIGHT PARK

One hundred and fifty Cree Indians are back once more on their reserve at Hobbema, after spending ten days in which they were able to live over again, in something more than mere imagination, the free and wild days when their forefathers roamed the prairie in pursuit of the buffalo.

Led by their chief, Samson, the Cree braves have been spending the past ten days on the big game preserve at Wainwright, taking part in the filming of scenes for "The Last Frontier," a Thos. H. Ince production based on the history of the opening up of the west, in which the Cree braves, armed with bow and arrows will appear as in the old days, riding their little cow ponies neck and neck with the pounding herds of buffalo and shooting down the biggest of the bulls for the meat and hide which between them supplied food, clothing and shelter for the tribesmen.

Realistic as the scenes will appear as shot by the movie men, however, persons apprehensive that the buffaloes were really shot down by the bow and arrow, may rest assured that no such thing actually happened. What really did occur was this:—the Cree riders, armed with bows and supplied with arrows lacking the usual sharp point used in real hunting, took part in the round-up of the herds, driving them past picked sharpshooters armed with high powered rifles, who were concealed in brush behind hiding places along the route taken by the herds.

As the herds ran past the concealed marksmen, these deadly shots, picking out the large bulls, dropped them with one bullet from their powerful rifles, death in every instance being instantaneous. To the uninitiated, however, it will appear that the thirty or so of bulls, seen to drop were actually killed by the arrows of the Cree braves.

Owing to a misunderstanding as to the way in which the bulls would be killed, there being some impression that the Indians would actually shoot down the animals with arrows, the Indian department was petitioned to withdraw the permission, previously given, that the Cree braves should take part in the round-up of the herds, but when assurance was given that the Cree would use only pointed arrows, and that bulls killed during the filming of the scenes, would be instantaneously killed by expert marksmen, the native warriors were allowed to proceed to their sham slaughter.—Journal.

HOW IT WORKS OUT

A paper with 500 paid up subscribers in the town's trading area is of great value to the local merchant. At 70c an inch it affords advertisers the most economical method of telling their story to those 500 people. A 20-inch advertisement would cost only $14 an issue. 500 letter circulars could not begin to get the same attention from 500 people as a 20-inch ad. in a good local paper commands. The merchant would find that his circulars would cost him around $36 by the time he had purchased stamps and envelopes and had the envelopes addressed.—County Publisher.

REDUCE RAIL DISTANCE

A reduction in the Canadian National railway mileage between Montreal and Toronto and Winnipeg will be effected by the opening of service on the Long Lake cutoff on December 1. By means of this cutoff, which is 20 miles in length, the distance from Winnipeg to Montreal will be reduced by 70 miles and 102 miles will be cut off the travelling distance between Winnipeg and Toronto. Three hours will be saved between Montreal and Winnipeg and four hours between Winnipeg and Toronto.

ALBERTA OIL PRODUCTION

Crude petroleum is found in three of the provinces of Canada. Ontario of course is the big producer, the total running last year to more than 164,721 barrels worth $558,316, including the bonus paid by the Dominion government and amounting to $85,484. New Brunswick came next with 7,778 barrels, worth $32,732, including $4,373 bonus money. Alberta is credited with 6,559 barrels, but they were worth $52,128 to the producers, although the bonus allowance paid was only $246. While in the quantity produced Alberta takes third place, it ranks well ahead of New Brunswick in the cash value of the product, despite the fact that the government bonus is a trifle in respect to Alberta oil.

WEAR A POPPY ON ARMISTICE DAY!

There is no excuse, this year, for anyone not to be in possession of a poppy. In order to cover the districts where there is not a branch of the G.W.V.A., a poster has been forwarded to the postmaster at one thousand towns in Alberta with the request that the postmaster place it in the hands of some organization or prominent citizen in the locality in order that Armistice Day may be fully observed and the little flower emblem of respect worn.

Many people submitting letters and letters to The Times still use both sides of the paper to write upon. It would greatly help the staff of the paper and avoid many errors if persons would only use one side of the paper.

SEVEN WEEKS OLD
BABY TRAVELLING
ALONE TO ENGLAND

Noel Victor Fournough, aged seven weeks, son of a farmer at Morin, Alberta, the youngest child on record to travel alone, has left on a journey from Calgary to Liverpool, England, and will be in charge of officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway and steamship lines throughout the trip.

F. J. Hurkett, city passenger agent said yesterday that a ticket had been issued to the child, a passport arranged, and an indemnity bond signed. Travelling to Montreal, the child is in the care of a lady who is going to the eastern seaboard, who was willing to accept the charge. She will deliver young Noel to Nurse Saunders of the S.S. Montclare, who will care for him until the ship docks at Liverpool. On his arrival there, relatives will undertake its care.

The mother died shortly after the child's birth, and the father brought it to Calgary until further arrangements could be completed for sending it to England.

Mrs. R. E. Gough, formerly Miss Nina Welles, and infant son, returned to Wetaskiwin after a visit with Mrs. J. H. Burrows.—Dayland Press.

TOWN TOPICS

Christmas will be here in less than seven weeks.

Mrs. J. I. Poole was at Edmonton last week visiting friends. She attended the concert by Madame Clara Butt.

Mrs. Arman Schmidt underwent an operation in the Wetaskiwin hospital last week, and is progressing as well as can be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. McQueen arrived from the Kootenay district last week to spend a few days visiting relatives and friends in the city and district.

The work on the addition to the curling rink is almost completed, and the work of making ice will start just as soon as weather permits.

R. M. Angus is having the debris cleared away from his lots, corner of Lorne and Macdonald streets. The iron has been disposed of to an Edmonton dealer.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Ratcliffe and family, who have been visiting their mother, Mrs. Ward, left Wednesday morning for Vancouver, where they will reside.

J. E. Gullberg left on Tuesday evening for Saskatoon and other points in Saskatchewan, where he will look after business affairs and renew acquaintances.

Now is the time to order your Christmas Greeting Cards. The Times has even a larger and better assortment of samples than was shown last season. The prices are right.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Solthoff and son Bernhard, left last Saturday for California, where they will reside. Their many friends join in wishing them all success in their new home.

The Norwegian Ladies' Aid of Wang will hold their annual sale at the home of Mrs. Jeglum on Monday afternoon, November 12. A turkey dinner will be served. Everybody welcome.

Rev. Leo. F. Gassner and family, who left last week for the U.S., writes, "We had a good trip, and like it down here very much. The crop was not as good as in the Alberta districts, but conditions seem to be good. We intend to leave Anamoose, where we are visiting with Rev. and Mrs. Lipport, on Tuesday for Streeter, N.D., where we are intending to do missionary work for the near future."

TOWN TOPICS

We understand there are several cases of scarlet fever in the city.

J. J. Burns and family left the fore part of the week for Halifax, where Mr. Burns has accepted a position as foreman of a C.P.R. section gang.

Mrs. Steinacher and Mr. Julius Dahms, who have been visiting relatives and friends in the Wetaskiwin district for some time, left for their homes in Puyallup, Wash., on Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Young, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Irwin, at the Parsonage, for several days, returned to her home in Edmonton on Monday. Mrs. Irwin and baby accompanied her. We understand the baby is quite ill with erysipelas.

The young people of Wetaskiwin worked off a lot of superfluous energy on Wednesday evening of last week—Hallowe'en night. No damage was done, the pranks being all of the mischievous nature. There were a lot of windows washed in the business section on Thursday morning.

Remember the Thanksgiving Festival at the Swedish Baptist church, corner of Miquelon St. east, on Saturday, November 10. Dinner will be served from 5.30 to 8.30 p.m. Program will follow. Get your ticket at Gullberg's store. Adults, 50c; Children, 25c.

A very successful Hallowe'en party of the "Wherefore Thou Stoppeth Us" club, at the Grade VIII room, was held in the school room on Friday evening. Games were played, including dancing for apples, etc., and after a lunch, the party broke up, everyone claiming the evening one of the most enjoyable ever spent by the class.

Card of Thanks

That Croupy Cough
Alarms the Mother

It strikes terror to the mother's heart to have her baby wake up during the night with a croupy cough. When this happens there is no time for delay; the first thing to do is to apply hot poultices to the throat and upper part of the chest, and then give a few doses of

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as by doing this the mother will find that the child will receive prompt and permanent relief, and perhaps the life saved by taking this immediate precaution.

Mrs. Wesley Koch, Cuneago, Ont., writes: "My little girl had a very croupy cough which kept her awake at night. I had tried several things to relieve it, but could get nothing until I got Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. After she had taken a few doses I saw good effects so I kept right on with it and her cough soon left her."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25c a bottle; 50c for the large family size; put up only by The T. Millara Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Madam:
Will you please be good enough to express to the different Ladies' Aids our cordial thanks for the very generous donation for the relief of the sufferers through the Japanese earthquake.

Yours faithfully,
Mary E. Waagen.
1st vice president.

BEAUTIFUL ASTRAL BODY
OBSERVED BY MRS. SPARK
ON TUESDAY EVENING

A strange and beautiful phenomenon was observed by Mrs. Spark at about midnight on Tuesday. While looking from a window which gives a view of the eastern sky, she noticed an astral body, somewhat larger than a star, rising and falling, and slowly making its way in a southerly direction. The attraction of this extraordinary object was that it acted in much the same manner as a diamond upon which a ray of light has fallen, prismatic or iridescent beams flashing from it as it moved. It also seemed to possess a framework which changed its shape. Mrs. Spark watched ed this unusual star through her field glasses until it grew dim and faded from view.—Canadian.

J. Grant Walker, living west of Eckville, came before Justices Carswell and Kent, J.P.s, on Wednesday afternoon on a charge of infraction of the inland Revenue Act in operating an illicit still. He pleaded guilty and was fined $400 or six months. He was given thirty days to pay the fine.
